1999, the U.S. government failed to assassinate Atomic-leader Ray "Heavy" Harris. To prevent Heavy from retaliating and destroying Texas, Etienne Lux telepathically kills the president, his staff and many more.

1999,
NEW YORK.

This orbital strike is only the latest of many attempts to kill Raymond "Heavy" Harris.

With the death toll in the hundreds, the country is in mourning. It's still unsure who is responsible for this slaughter.

The prime suspect is telepathic omniopath Etienne Lux, last seen in Lower Manhattan.

The FBI urges everyone to pay close attention to recording devices.

If anyone has a sighting, they should--

Hello. I thought this would be the easiest, least intrusive, and safest way to talk.

I think it's unlikely anyone will fire a nuclear projectile at New York.

I just killed the president of the United States of America...

...his staff...

...and everyone involved in the development of this ill-considered strike on Haven.

My thoughts are with everyone who loved the dead. My action prevented Haven's own reprisal, which would have been far bloodier.

Still: all violence is a failure...and I know violent thoughts are now rampant among you.

Some are considering turning thought into action.

We must resist.

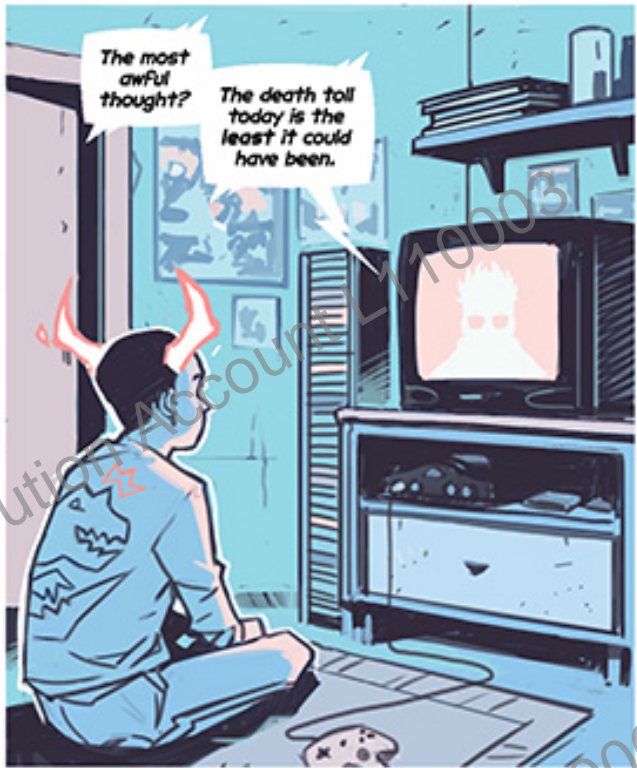

A stone thrown at a strange-eyed Atomic comes from the same place which drove this fine country's leaders to attack.

As in, Fear.

We must not submit to our Fears.

IF we do, it will consume us all.

The most awful thought?

The death toll today is the least it could have been.

Let's not change that.
