

TELEPORTATION™ AND OTHER LUXURIES

Archie Bongiovanni ▲ Mary Verhoeven ▲ Lucas Gattoni

The Blamazon Teen Scientist Competition entrants have been announced and Ty, you made the cut.

Naturally, our descendant made it into the competition.

This is a perfect way for you to debut your first invention. Everyone's been waiting...

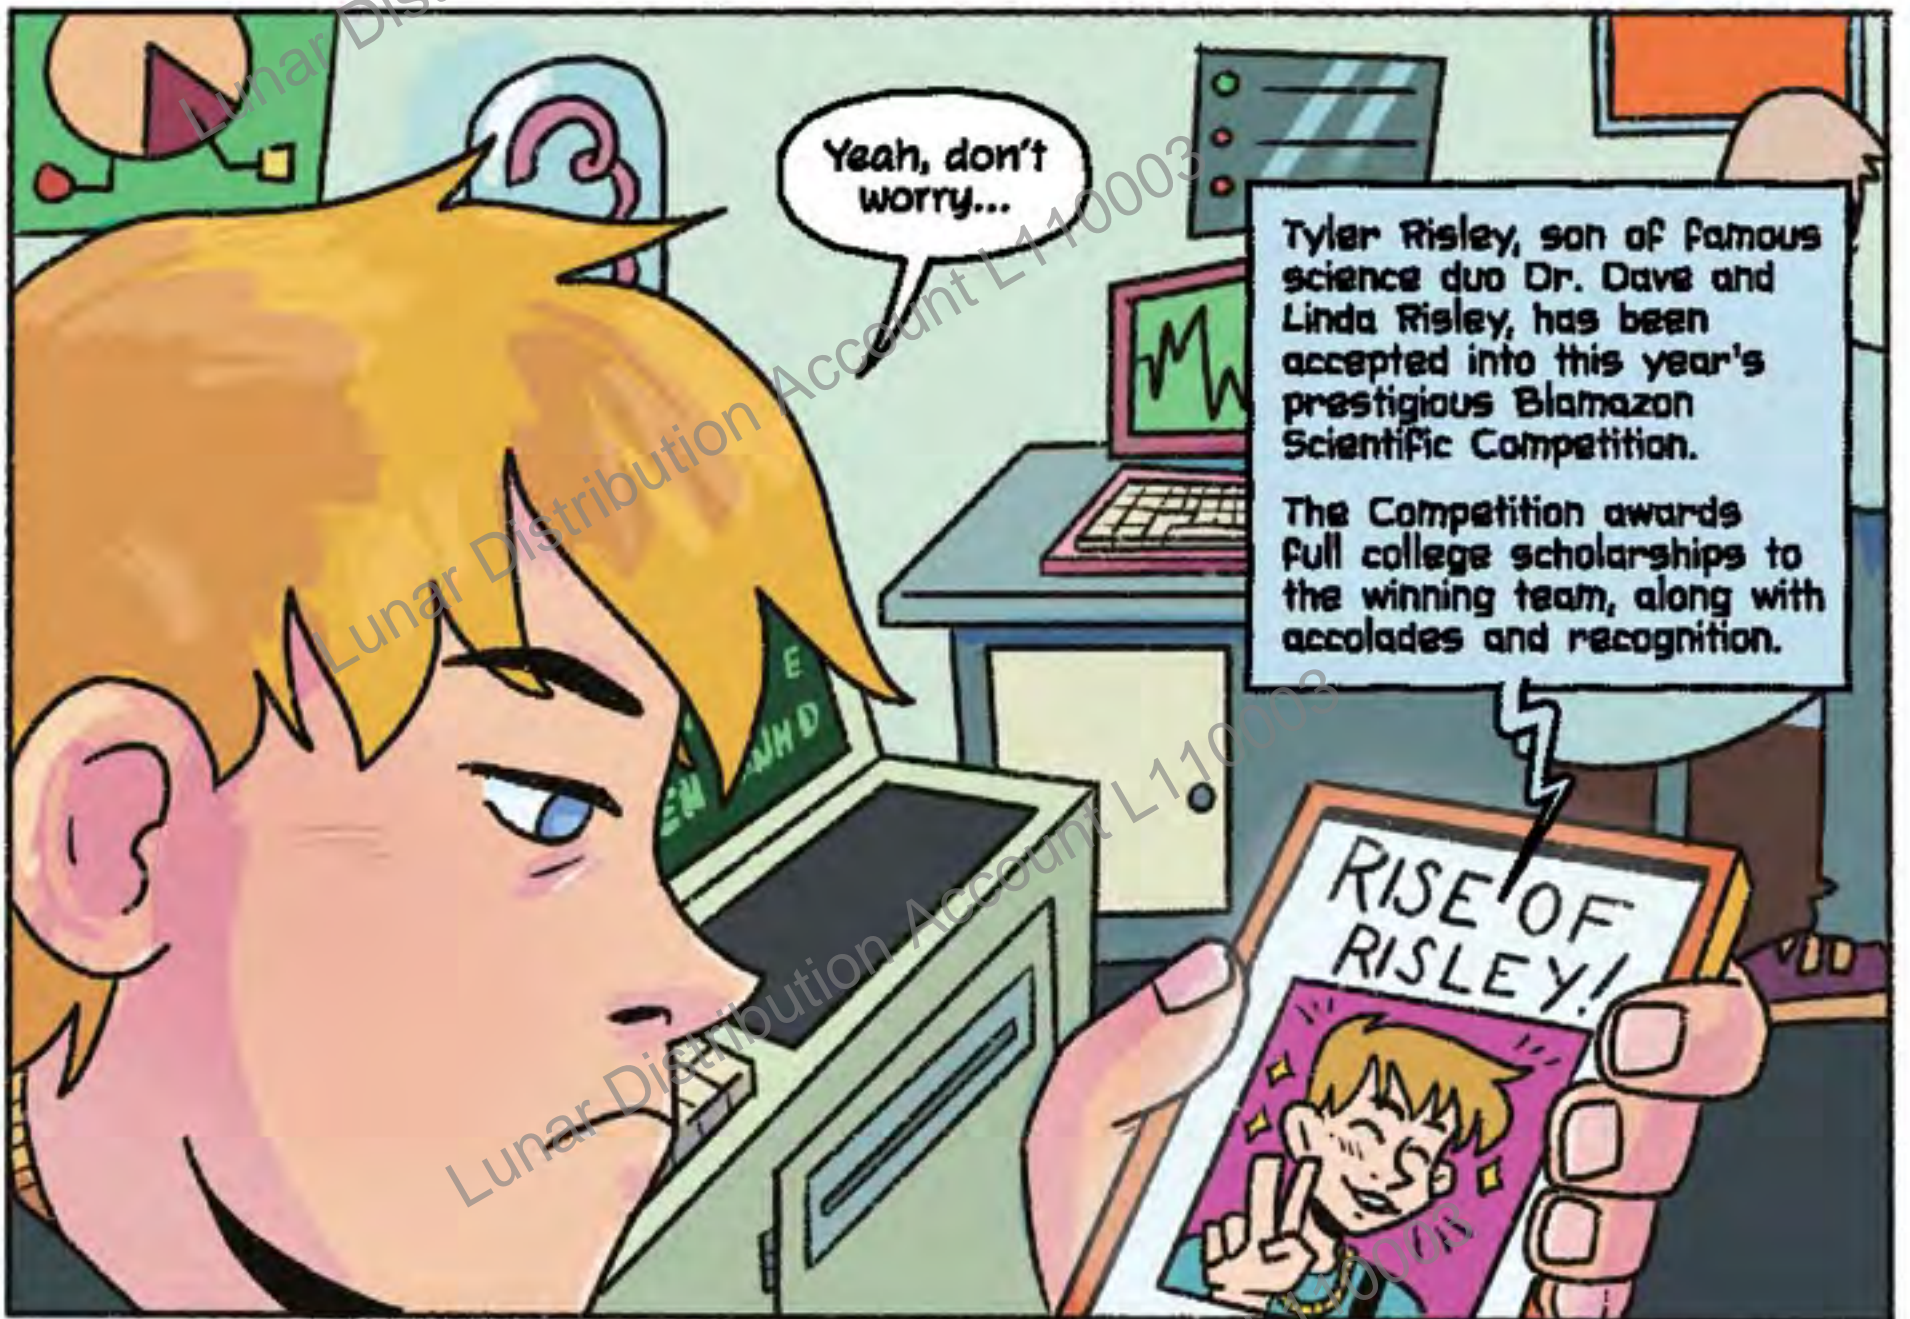

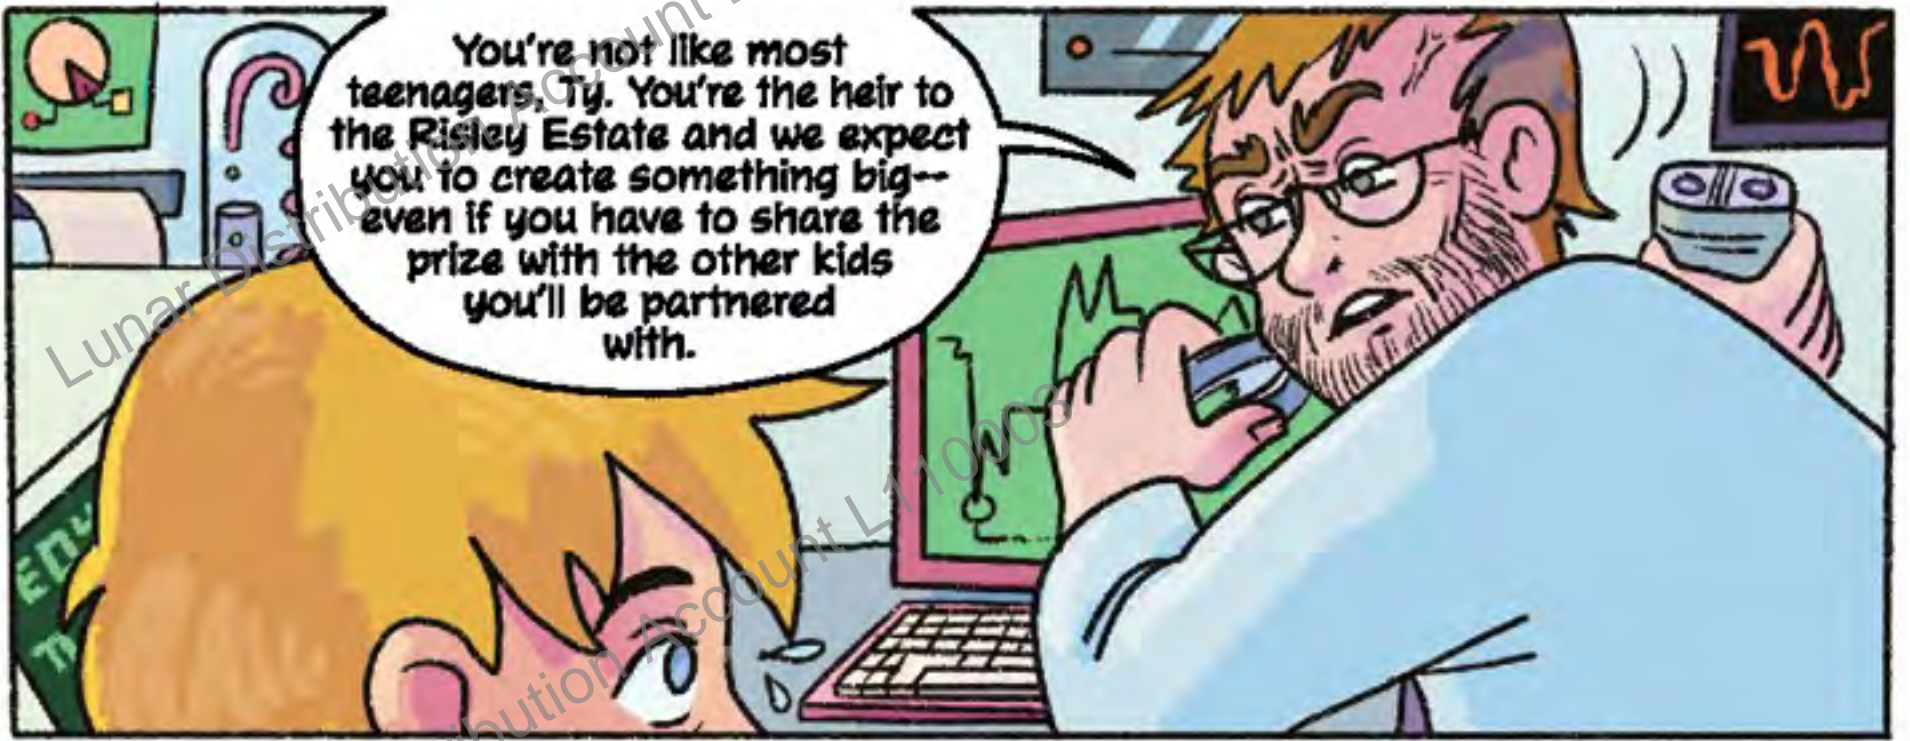

...us, the reporters, your fans on social media, everyone.

It's important for you to keep up the family's reputation. Even if you're being partnered with...scientists of a lesser caliber.

Y'know, most seventeen year olds are throwing house parties and experimenting with drugs, not trying to come up with the next big invention for the Blamazon Corporation.

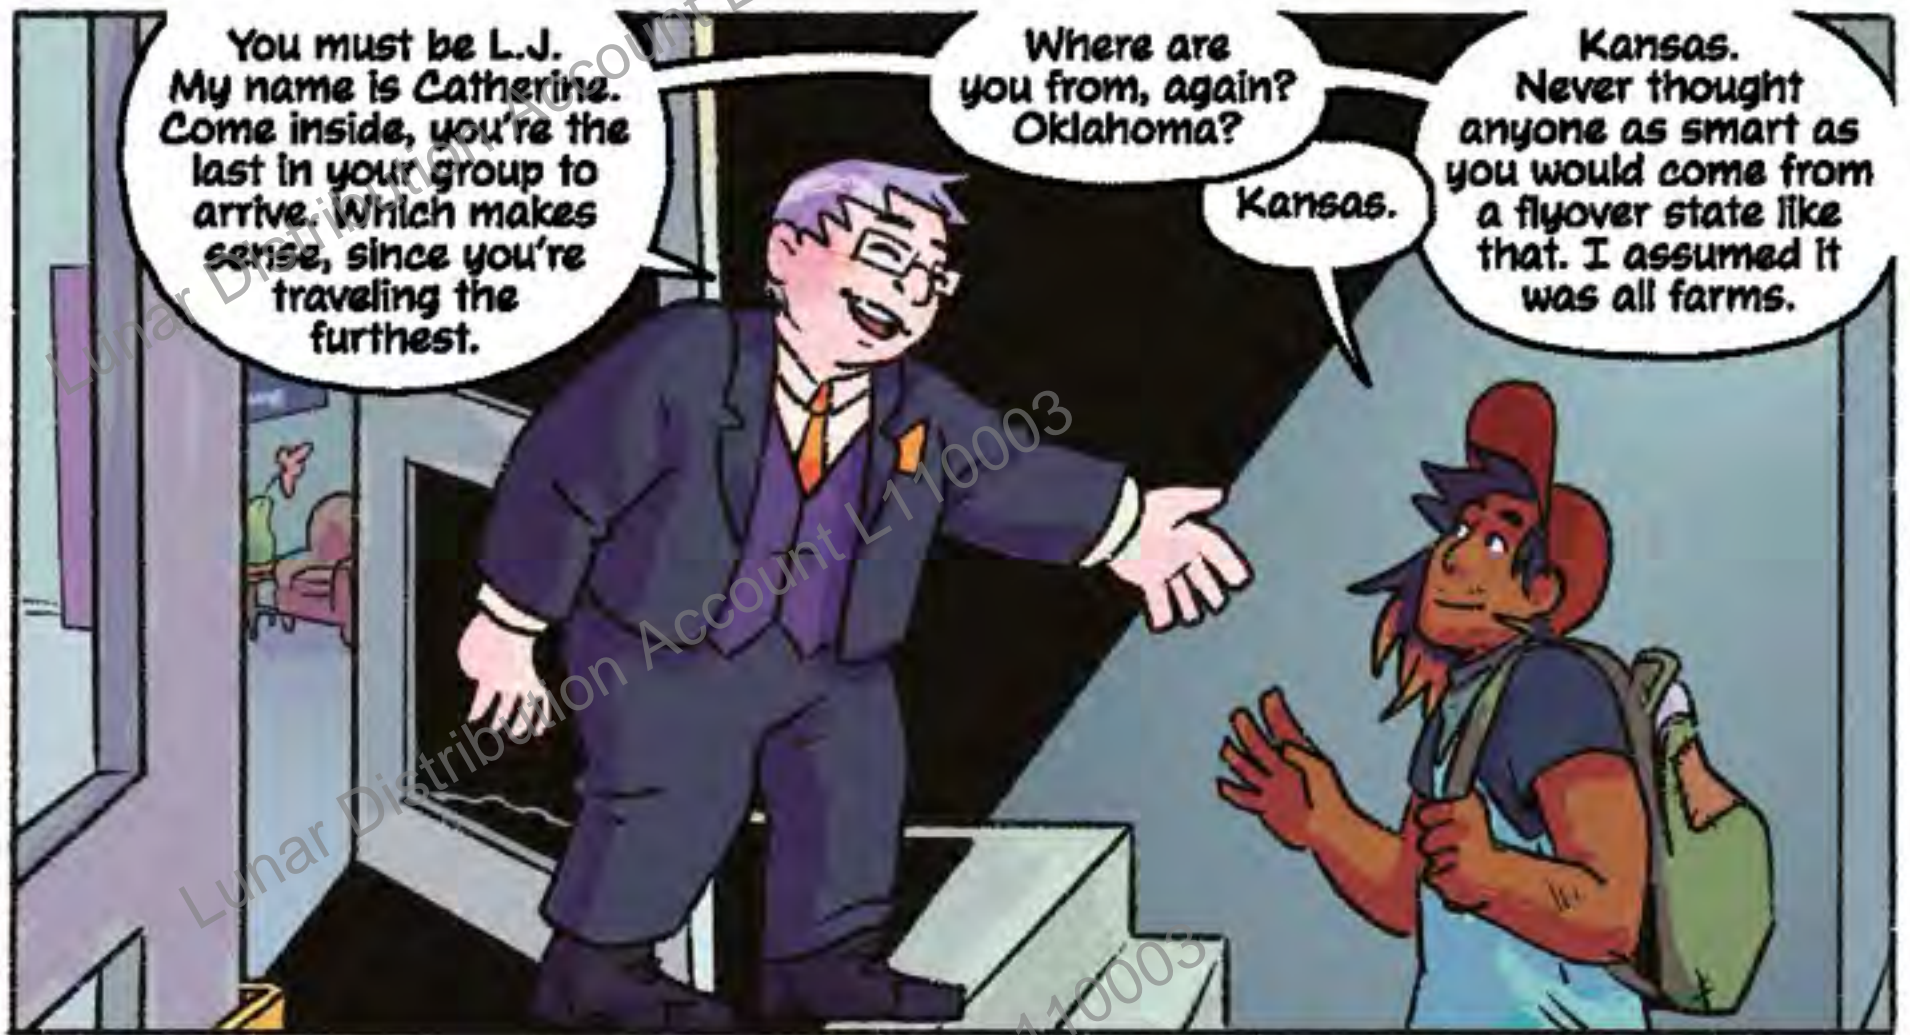

Alright kid, this is your stop. Blamazon headquarters.

Uh, yeah... Just give me a minute.

You must be L.J. My name is Catherine. Come inside, you're the last in your group to arrive. Which makes sense, since you're traveling the furthest.

Where are you from, again? Oklahoma?

Kansas.

Kansas. Never thought anyone as smart as you would come from a flyover state like that. I assumed it was all farms.

We were impressed by your engineering and mathematical skills.

Truly unlike anything we've seen before here at Blamazon Corp, and we've seen the best of the best.

When I saw what you've accomplished, I was like, yes, he's got the chops to create us something that could make us millions! Billions even!

You'll be working with three other kids your age to create the next big Blamazon invention—although between you and I, you're the one who needs that scholarship the most.

The other kids will be just fine, but you...well, it'll make a great rags to riches news story if you win!